Cura. 249 range

Informal. Classic. Spacious.

Cura is strikingly informal, classically streamlined and generously comfortable. It is quite simply a first-class lounge chair. Cura sets itself apart with clear, restrained upholstery contours, engineered cantilever frame construction and intriguing frame details on the back.

The single-section seat shell consists of a steel frame with tension springs that is completely embedded within the upholstery. Despite its slender shape, the sophisticated upholstery allows Cura to offer the superb comfort of a traditional lounge chair. Whether in leather or fabric, with upholstered or veneered armrests, Cura has a light, elegant and inviting appeal. A chair that is sure to impress – whatever the backdrop. Rectangular and square side tables complete the range.

Cura
Design: wiege

Model 249/5
black leather, armrests
fully upholstered in leather, frame bright chromium-plated

Depending on interior design concepts and personal preferences, armrests can be selected as an option with surfaces in moulded wood with walnut veneer, or with fully upholstered pads to match the covers.

The material and form of the Cura side tables are designed to match the cantilever chairs perfectly.

249/8

249/7

The upholstery on the Cura 249/7 is placed on a centre pedestal. This enables a frame without armrests, allowing plenty of freedom of movement. The star base dovetails with the clear shape and is made of die-cast aluminium. The same applies to the footstool (model 249/8). In this case, the upholstery consists of a cushioned, completely covered plywood shell.

The seat's appearance is harmonious, with two horizontal, detailed seams that define its features.
